By Living in the Bubble
This is one of a number of books by Mark Opsasnick, a Greenbelt, MD, resident, that focus on the history of DC and MD landmarks and music. A "must have" for interested locals.

By William G. Mccown
This glove-box sized travel companion will be constant fascination for anyone who grew up in or lives in the DC area. Mark Opsasnick's phenomenal research abilities and fantastic love of popular culture combine to produce a guide to this DC suburb like--well, like no other, to put it simply. We aren't talking AAA, Fodor, or even Lonely Planet. Instead, expect enough esoteric facts, odd details, and delightfully quirky landmarks to make you want to plan your next vacation around a spot most of us otherwise regard as rather dull.
