Jes Fuhmann, Jes Fuhrmann : The Diary of Pink Pearl - A Bird's Eye View before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The Diary of Pink Pearl - A Bird's Eye View:

3 of 10 people found the following review helpful. compassionate, and vividly writtenBy P. VenableThe Diary of Pink Pearl, is a beautiful journey for a misunderstood bird. Jes Fuhmann gives us another view from the eyes of another species with compassion, insight, and warm. Very beautiful!3 of 4 people found the following review helpful. The Life and Story Of A Rescued ParrotBy YodaMomI first heard of this book from a parrot owner friend, the idea fascinated me. The book is written from the birds perspective. As a bird owner of 22 years I love stories of parrots rescued so I gave it a try. I had to have it. I was not disappointed, what a fun read. I really enjoyed the POV being from the parrot. She (Pearl) was insightful in her perceptive of her human companions over the years. She (Pearl) is aware of her species desperate struggles. I found Pearl's story to be heartbreaking, educating, sweet and will it stay with me. I would recommend to any pet lover I purchased volume one and loved it so much I went on to purchase and read volumes 2 and 3.- All wonderful I will continue to follow this compassionate author's work 5 of 8 people found the following review helpful. but it turned out to be an even bigger disappointment than I expected By jenise I didn't have high expectations before I started reading, but it turned out to be an even bigger disappointment than I expected. The "author" seems to be quite chemically imbalanced, and seemingly delusional, writing about HERSELF from her bird's perspective. The only enjoyment I got out of this waste of paper, time and space is the disbelief and laughter I have shared and enjoyed after telling my friends, fellow animal lovers, and book club about this nonsense. If you enjoy a good train-wreck, conductor Jes Furhmann will take you on a journey straight to de-railment.

Pink Pearl's Parrot Rescue is officially a Federally Registered 501(c) non-profit organization. Pink Pearl lived alone, without a feathered flock in her own little "bird room" confined inside a cage to protect her from the family feline who openly and peacefully shared their life with the humans. Scared and alone while the family drifting apart with their focuses turning to higher education and a better way to provide for their financial struggles to compete with the changing world, Pearly Bird began to self-destruct one feather at a time at the tender age of four. Screaming for freedom and for a chance to prove she that wasn't the "wild animal" she was accused of being only caused her to being imprisoned for eleven more years behind the cold, deaf bars of her cage. Then one day a caring angel answered her calls to finally be understood and given a chance to thrive amongst the strict, complicated, human environment. Now at home without predators and by the hands of a loving couple, Pearl begins to thrive and develop becoming once again the exotic family member from a small island devastated by self-destruction and neglect.
