

[Read and download] The Expat Almanac: Sell it all. Pack a bag. Hit the road.

The Expat Almanac: Sell it all. Pack a bag. Hit the road.

Louise Lague, Tom Lichty
audiobook / *ebooks / Download PDF / ePub / DOC

DOWNLOAD

+

READ ONLINE

#930455 in Books Ingramcontent 2014-05-16Original language:EnglishPDF # 1 9.00 x .27 x 6.00l, .36 #File Name: 0988722526116 pagesThe Expat Almanac Sell It All Pack a Bag Hit the Road | File size: 54.Mb

Louise Lague, Tom Lichty : The Expat Almanac: Sell it all. Pack a bag. Hit the road. before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The Expat Almanac: Sell it all. Pack a bag. Hit the road.:

1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Interesting travel journalBy A readerThis book is mostly a compilation of blog posts with extra color around them. The book was easy to read and I enjoyed the adventure.I'm glad there was a chapter on finding short term properties and also on the challenges with the Puerto Vallarta rental. Was also glad to read about dealing with a medical emergency while on the road.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Great story! By Tey Morris Thoroughly enjoyed reading this travelogue! Definitely food for thought and provides insight into international living! When I get the nerve, I may even try it myself! Read it and see why! 5 of 6 people found the following review helpful. Everyone's dream to travel for a year - this couple took the step and this book tells us all about it. By mjboyd What a great book - these two closed up their home and traveled for a year, staying in Spain, Crete, Venice, Bellagio, and Puerto Vallarta - the last for 6 glorious months. The authors are both witty and entertaining, as well as being adventurous - to actually take this journey many of us only think about. Great read from the comfort of home and hearth. They traveled by train, boat and bus, local and across borders, and stayed in apartments rented ahead of time after extensive online research. These two are seasoned and enthusiastic travelers - an inspiration for those of us who have long term travel on our bucket lists ! Read this book to share their adventures and mishaps (no spoilers here), find inspiration to take the trip yourselves if so inclined, and for a great way to spend an afternoon or evening in the comfort of home.

Well into their second fifty years, Louise Lague and Tom Lichty abandoned everything that was comfortable and secure, packed one bag each, and embarked on an adventure that lasted a year. They let their apartment lease expire. They sold their car and almost everything else. They said goodbye to young and old and hit the road. How did they prepare? What did they take? Where did they live? How much did it cost? What if there was a medical crisis? (Spoiler: there was.) What did they do when the year ended?

About the Author Louise Lague embarked on her first solo adventure at age three, after getting bored in her front yard. Her terrified parents kept her on a leash for thirteen years, then took her to Europe for the first time, which she found mindboggling and generally awesome. She can no longer count how many times she's been back, but never before for more than a month. A journalist, she wrote for Time Inc. magazines for twenty years. Her work has also appeared in O, Self, Glamour, and the New York Times travel section. Tom Lichty dabbled in the wine exporting business for years, not to make money (he didn't), but to travel (he did), and discovered that travel is like a fine pinot noir: adventurous, savory, and somewhat addictive. He is retired as a graphic-design consultant and university lecturer. Over half a million copies of his books have been sold. Interspersed with legitimate employment, he has been a pilot, a radio announcer, a tugboat operator, and a newspaper publisher.